

ARIZONA BRIEFS.

News and Comments Pertaining to the Territory.

THE TREASURELAND OF AMERICA.

Epitome of the Most Important Occurrences of the Week and Interesting Facts, Culled from Our Exchanges.

According to the last census there are 4,000 more men than women in Arizona.

The recent cold snap is said to have killed the fruit in sections of northern and central Arizona.

It is reported that Tucson is to have another democratic newspaper to be named the Arizona Statesman.

One of the biggest snow storms of the winter visited Flagstaff Thursday last, and it is said the storm extended nearly to Prescott.

Ex-Delegate to Congress J. F. Wilson has secured a residence in Phoenix and will locate there immediately, and go into the practice of law.

A Tucson preacher took for his text, "Be Ye Therefore Steadfast," and the Star got it mixed so as to read, "be ye there for breakfast." A big improvement we think.—Gazette.

With the Harrison act as a safety valve to our finances and the experience of recent legislatures, in the profligate appropriation of funds, what might we expect of a state legislature with no restrictions on it?—Journal-Miner.

A Tucson attorney had his clothes attached in Phoenix last week while he was taking a bath. Constable McDonald agreed to give the lawyer his clothes if he paid the bill. It is needless to say that the account was settled promptly.—Gazette.

R. Allen Lewis is the man that is being most talked about for the republican candidate for mayor. Mr. Lewis was the best and ablest councilman Phoenix ever had, and he will make a model mayor for the capital city of Arizona.—Gazette.

The general appropriation bill of the defunct Twenty-first foots up $57,558, easily twenty thousand more than any previous appropriation bill. And this outside of the numerous relief bills, the appropriations for maintenance of territorial institutions and other purposes.—Gazette.

Arrangements are being made to transfer from the land office to the agricultural department of nearly all matters concerning forest reserves. The patrol of the forests will remain in charge of the interior department. The change will be a sweeping and radical one.—Cocconino Sun.

Thomas Dwyer, a well to do mine owner of Jerome, died last Monday at the Equator mine of pneumonia. He owned some fine mining properties in that section and had $1,000 in the bank, and is also said to have been possessed of property in Denver and Chicago.—Journal-Miner.

Senator Ives has been appointed assistant prosecuting attorney in Yuma by Chief Justice Street. Now if the senator will prosecute constituents as assiduously as he did Governor Murphy, the chances are that the Yuma county jail will not hold all of his victims.—Gazette.

A little girl at Tempe drank a pint of coal oil. The doctors thought she would die, until one of them hit on a happy expedient. They slipped a yard of candlewick down into the oil, lit the upper end, and during the evening she lighted the room nicely and then went to bed all right. This is a legislator's story.—Gazette.

The Grand Lodge of Arizona Odd Fellows will meet in convention in Phoenix on April 16, and it is expected that members of the order will be present from all parts of the territory. In anticipation of the event the Santa Fe has made a one-fare rate for the round trip from all points in the territory to Phoenix for that date.—Enterprise.

The new code dispenses with the election of assessor and makes that office an appointive one, instead of elective as now. While this plan has many advantages its wisdom is questioned by some. Freed from any entangling political influence the new procedure would doubtless be productive of good results, but a growing sentiment prevails with the voters that all officers should be made elective. However, Arizona will have to try it and pass judgment afterward.—Prospector.

Mr. Percival Lowell of Boston, and owner of the Lowell Observatory of this place, arrived Thursday night and will remain here during the next two months. He returned last week from a trip to Europe. During his stay here Mr. Lowell will occupy the Greenlaw residence on Leroux street. Mars is in favorable position for observation and Mr. Lowell and his assistants will devote their time to the study of that planet.—Cocconino (Flagstaff) Sun.

Since moving the ostrich raising industry to the Bayles farm west of town the proprietor, Mr. Pearson, has made improvements thereon to the value of nearly $5,000. He is making the property a valuable possession even without the birds. It is understood that Mr. Pearson is preparing to exhibit a carload of his birds at the Buffalo exposition this summer.—Republican.

Burt Alvord, according to rumor, came into Tucson this week and spent several hours with his friends. Alvord has acquired a great deal of nerve and is likely to be captured soon. He was seen yesterday (Friday) at Douglas and a posse started out after him. Alvord says he is not afraid of the officers and is ready for a fight if an attempt is made to take him.—Citizen.

Phoenix is already the location of more handsome residences and homes than any city between Fort Worth and Los Angeles, says the Gazette. To see the interesting and pretty portion of the city as displayed in her fine cottages and palatial residences one must have a horse and buggy and spend a half day in driving about the suburbs. The city proper is now three miles long by a mile and a half wide and growing in beauty and extent every day.

There is no certainty that President McKinley will visit Phoenix. The Phoenix Gazette says: Mayor Ganz received a letter from the private secretary to President McKinley, under date of March 23, in which he states no definite arrangements have yet been made relative to the trip to the western coast. He adds that the invitation extended the president to visit Phoenix is appreciated, and further, that in making up the itinerary this city will receive careful consideration.

A glance at the figures of last election show 16,620 as the total number of votes cast. Smith received 8,664, Murphy 7,664 and Davidson 292. The democratic representation in the next convention will be as follows: Apache 4, Cochise 16, Coconino 9, Gila 13, Graham 18, Maricopa 24, Mohave 8, Navajo 6, Pima 18, Pinal 3, Santa Cruz 7, Yavapai 24, Yuma 9. Total 173. Necessary to choose 87. It will be noted that the balance of power has shifted to the south, Yavapai having lost 10 delegates since the last apportionment.

At the meeting of the directors of the Arizona Antiquarian association held in the board of trade rooms yesterday, it was decided to at once begin the work of soliciting subscriptions for the excavation of the old ruin on the Tempe road. A committee was appointed for that work and it will probably enter upon its duties tomorrow. The members of the committee are E. T. Stovall, Mrs. A. J. McClatchie, J. W. Benham, Thomas Armstrong, Jr., Mrs. S. D. Lount and Dr. J. Miller.—Republican.

The Southern Pacific railroad is abreast of the times with electric headlights for its engines. By merely touching a button the engineer sets the light into play. Each light is of 2,000 candle power. It lights the track half a mile ahead of the engine. Anything on the track can be seen sixteen telegraph poles ahead, far enough away so that the train could be brought to a halt before it reached the object, even under full speed. The engines are being provided with the apparatus as fast as it can be supplied.—Ex.

The terrific storms that passed over various southern and northern states yesterday, destroying life and property, ought in itself tend to teach our people that they live in one of the best countries that God's sun shines on—that health and wealth are open to all who believe that truth follows in the pathway of industry. That we are living in a land that is specially blessed in many ways. The future is what we will make it. Let us consider the many good things we are surrounded with and forget the few annoyances, and move on to better the condition of ourselves and neighbor.—Gazette.

It is semi-officially announced that work will commence within two weeks on the Big Bug branch railroad. It is said that the right of way for the entire length of the road has been secured, and as soon as commenced the road will be pushed through to completion as rapidly as possible. The road will run from the Prescott and Eastern to a point near Huron up Big Bug creek to the Poland and Hamilton mine, and will be five or six miles in length. It will tap and open up a rich mining district and will give a further impetus to mining in an already active and prosperous district.—Journal-Miner.

The new school law recently passed by the legislature as a part of the code became effective April 1. Under the new law the county board of examiners is abolished and no power is left in the counties to grant certificates to teachers. All teachers' certificates will be issued by the territorial board of education. The county school superintendents will receive the examination questions from the territorial board and conduct the examination of teachers as now, when he will return the papers and work of each teacher to the territorial board, who alone will have power to grant certificates. Civics has been added to the studies on which teachers will hereafter be required to stand examination. The school age has been changed from 6 to 18, as formerly 6 to 21.

A MISSIONARY VIEW.
It is refreshing to record the opinions of an honest partisan. The Rev. Arthur J. Brown is one of those. Mr. Brown is a missionary and ordinarily would look at things terrestrial as well as those celestial from the missionary point of view. It would appear, however, that, notwithstanding his natural bias, Mr. Brown is able to deal fairly with subjects in which the cause he represents is virtually interested.

In an address before the Young Men's Christian Association, he reviewed the situation in China, declaring that three forces have operated to bring about the recent troubles in that country. The first of these, said Mr. Brown, was commerce; the second was the intrusion and interference of foreign governments in the politics of the empire; and the third disturbing force was Christianity.

It does not appear that Mr. Brown justifies the aggressions of these three factors in the oppression and disintegration of the Chinese Empire, but he attempts, as in duty bound, to exculpate the agents of his order from much of the blame that has been cast upon them for the consequences of a too zealous propagation of doctrines that were utterly repugnant to the Chinese mind, habit and superstition.

Mr. Brown's attitude is logical enough from his standpoint, and the only objection that may be urged against his conclusion is directed at the assertion that the missionaries were not directly responsible for the uprising of the Boxers. This objection may be palliated by the reflection that Mr. Brown admits the complicity of the missionaries in any event. It may even be agreed that the missionaries were not directly responsible for the revolt, in that they personally provoked the massacres, but there is a widespread belief that they were the inciting cause of the trouble, and that if it had not been for the presence of the missionaries the natives would have been less bitter against the foreigners.

The missionaries were the pioneers of the foreign invasion of the Chinese Empire. They preceded the traders, and it was to sustain the missionaries that foreign governments interfered in the politics of the country.

Mr. Brown will probably admit that the immediate cause of the disturbances in China was the seizure of a vast province of the Empire by the Germans in retaliation for the murder of two missionaries by an irresponsible Chinese mob. It must be admitted even by the missionaries that the justification of this seizure of territory was only a pretext, and that the murder of the missionaries was an excuse long awaited by the German government.

The injustice of the civilized nations toward China is manifest in the exorbitance of their demands for indemnity due for acts of the Chinese perpetrated under the goad of foreign aggression. Foreign commerce has undertaken to rob the Chinese of their property and their land; foreign governments have compelled concessions that were ruinous to Chinese interests and Chinese policy; and foreign religions have attacked the sacred superstitions of the Chinese people as an invading army attacks the stronghold of an enemy—with gunboats, and the threat of armed hosts.

Usually these facts are veiled in the sophistries of the preacher and the so-called "humanitarian," and it is, therefore, refreshing to hear something approaching the truth from the lips of one whose interests are with the cause of religious aggression in China. There is hope for ultimate justice to the weak and the oppressed when such fair-minded men as the Rev. Mr. Brown are willing to acknowledge the wrongs that have been done in the name of civilization and Christianity.—San Francisco Post.
